Matrix Educational Foundation's
Matrix School of Management Studies
Report on "Post Covid Trends In Marketing"

Date: 26th February, 2022

A guest session of Mr. Sunil Chougale was organized under, 'Fourth Dimension Series' on "Past Covid Trends in Marketing" at 11.00 am. He explained the exchange process involved in marketing of goods and services. The goods move from manufacturer to retailer and reaches end customers. The customers purchase the goods or services and pay in return to them. This is an exchange process. The uncertainty about the virus has led policymakers to take a cautious approach to reopening their respective economies.

He quoted few examples relevant to the shift in their business model to facilitative exchange process. The pandemic situation necessitated many of them to think of innovative ideas to reach the customers. Restaurants were converted to online booking and delivery of products through Zomato or Swiggy, etc. A Gym instructor conducted an online physical fitness or Zumba class. Past two years has given us new technological look out. The educational institutes had to shift from offline classes to online mode through digital platforms, like Zoom, Microsoft teams, Webex, etc to bridge the gap between the teacher and a student. In automobile company, a trend of driverless cars and inclusion of digital medium will emerge.

In terms of supply chains, the face of manufacturing will change drastically. Now it will become a more diversified network to reduce dependency on one country or a single production hub. As business adapt their strategies to cope with the roadblocks, factory closures and restricted movement, a digitized supply chain is expected to emerge as one of the lasting impacts of the pandemic.

Pandemic has created an exceptional situation where the global demand for oil could drop by an average of nine per cent this year, boosting the domestic production of low-cost solar photo vatic (PV) modules and cells. Raw wind material and components is one such initiative that will lead the way. The Electric vehicles are introduced in market, but the other transport vehicles will also emerge on the same electric platforms. The increasing prices of diesel and petrol have made the automobile companies think about more sustainable options. Fuel efficiency vehicles based on CNG, electric vehicles, etc are the options available. By 2025, more than 50% of the existing vehicles will move out of market and vehicles based on the new parameters of quality, sustainable source will emerge.

He quoted examples of Amrutanjan, Parle-G Biscuits and their brand connection with consumers. Retailers are compelled to lead innovation through 'Omni-channel' competencies as online shopping experiences are replacing physical shopping in local stores. Pandemic has seen the fueling of innovation driven more by consumer demand and less by the bottom line.

In India spending on non-essential goods was decreased and on the essential goods was increased. Panic buying situation of people is rising. The pandemic has fundamentally changed the way people work and live.

The ecosystem should also foster a renewed culture of entrepreneurship. He told students to choose appropriate specialization by looking into future trends and move ahead with SIP.
